MAKING THEM AMERICANS

How few of us realize the importance of making over the foreigner—of implanting American ideals, ideas and common sense in place of socialistic and maybe anarchistic theories. It means a lot to every American citizen. This work and many other interesting activities of the Department of Labor are discussed in the twelfth issue of the series of beautifully illustrated booklets on Our Government which we have been distributing to representative citizens of this community.

If by any chance you have failed to receive regularly your copies of this series that has been so favorably commented upon, visit us today and from the limited supply on hand we will gladly complete your set.

Evergreen

With the dawning of 1923 a new page is opened before us and we hope no dark deeds may mare its fair face.

There is right much sickness in and around our village, but all seem to be improving. We need a Dr. here so much and this is a good place for one.

Our teachers Miss White-Neal and Miss Butler, who spent Xmas with their home people are back at their schools, but they have a very light attendance owing to sickness.

Rev. O. R. James preached a fine sermon at the Methodist church here Sunday.

Miss Madian Lee is in Richmond with her sister, Mrs. Aubrey Browning, who has been very ill with diphtheria, but is improving now.

Mr. Jessie Staples, of Lynchburg, was the guest of his home people Sunday.

We are sorry to hear of the death of Mrs Vick Woodson and the family has our deepest sympathy.

Hixburg

On last Thursday morning the death angel took from our midst the life of Mrs. Fannie Hix, widow of the late W. D. Hix, in the 81st year of her age. Mrs. Hix held the esteem of the entire neighborhood and in her death our county looses one of its best citizens and the family a most dutiful and loving mother. She leaves the following children to mourn her death Mrs Sarah Chamberlaine, Boone Iowa, Mrs Annie Earle, Waco Texas, Sears Hix, Baden N. C., Mrs Foestie Irwin, Baden N. C., Miss Carrie Hix Richmond, and Miss Maggie Hix, Messrs. Willie, Wilson and Thomas Hix, of this place. The body was laid to rest in the family cemetery beside her husband the late W D. Hix, who preceeded her to the grave twelve years ago. To know her was to love her.

A precious one from us has gone
A voice we loved is still
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled

Mrs. Hix was sick only two or three days and her death was a surprise and shock to the family as they thought she was getting better. The entire community extends sympathy to the family.

We have quite a number of cases of flu around here.

On Monday morning the round here was covered with snow and ice giving a glimpse of real winter, but it soon melted away.

Miss Rosa Lillian Fore is at home sick and may not return to college for several weeks.

J. W. Davis who has been right much complaining is about well again.

We hear some talk as if some people were driving the devil around the stump so to speak, in the way of selling tobacco in the childrens and wife's name &c now men come square or you will sure have to suffer. A very true saying a short cut never pays. I am ashamed to hear such acts of Appomattox farmers. Whether or not all the facts are found out a deserter is sure to feel condemned. I understand the team roller is going to work at the tobacco growers association club meeting at Hixburg on Saturday afternoon 2 p. m. after contract breakers and every tobacco grower that has signed a contract white and black is request through this paper to be on hand and do his part in upholding what the association stands for.

The Best County Schools.

According to the last printed report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, the following twenty counties, in the order named, have the best public school systems in the State: 1. Elizabeth City. 2. Arlington. 3. Prince George. 4. Loudoun. 5. Henrico. 6. James City. 7. Bath. 8. Highland. 9. Augusta. 10. Roanoke. 11. Northampton. 12. Norfolk. 13. Nottoway. 14. Alleghany. 15. Craig. 16. Dinwiddie. 17. Botetourt. 18. Shenandoah. 19. Pulaski. 20. Sussex.

As to the cities, Winchester is ranked first, Norfolk second, Richmond third, Lynchburg fourth and Portsmouth fifth. Here again the wealth of the city does not determine its rank in the school system.

The comparison of the educational advantages offered the children of Virginia in the several counties and cities furnishes much food for thought. The question arises whether Virginia has a right to permit any of her subdivisions to fall short in providing reasonable educational facilities for the children. The question is answered by the constitution which provides, "The General Assembly shall establish and maintain an efficient school system throughout the state."

Thus public education is a state function, not a local one.

If the state under the compulsory school law can invade a man's home and compel him to send his child to school; why can it not compel a county to make all necessary levies for efficient schools, to which every Virginia child has the moral and legal right? If a county is too poor (which is hardly the case, since some of the poorest counties have the best schools), the State should make up the deficiency. If the county is able and does not properly provide for the education of its children, that county deserves no more consideration than the selfish parent who sacrifices his own flesh and blood by keeping his children from school and capitalizing their labor.

Splendid Progress.

The splendid progress of the schools under the able leadership of Hon. Harris Hart, the present Superintendent of Public Instruction, will be treated in another part of this course. The object of this article is to bring to the attention of the reader that one of the problems confronting the State is to so provide that every child in Virginia, no matter in what county he resides, shall have adequate school facilities. This is a difficult and delicate task because of our system of local administration and local levies, but the problem must be met, if Virginia's educational rank among the states is to be materially raised and justice done to all her children.
